THE LIOUOR LICENSE TEST CASE The Arguments for the Defense Continued

Before Judge Miller Today. Yesterday afternoon in the Police Court after THE STAR report closed in the Rush liquor case, Mr. Clarke, for the defense, con-cluded his argument and Gen. Birney, also for the defense, began his argument. Gen. Birney. the defense, begun his argument. Gen. Birney said he noticed that there had never been anything said to indicate a claim that the holders of licenses under the act of 1871 were liable under the new law during the present license year. He said he had procured from the license clerk a copy of the regulations under which the contract between the Commissioners was made. Reading the con-tract he said his client had been given the right under it to do certain things until November of this year. He held that the contract must cer-tainly hold good until the expiration of the time stated therein. Referring to the decision of the Nau case he said that under that decision the license under the act of 1821 assumed the form of a revenue tax. He argued that such being the case it was certainly not in the power of the court to exact an additional penalty as though a police law had been violated. GEN. BIRNEY RESUMES TODAY.

This morning after the regular session of the court Gen. Birney resumed his argument. He proceeded to argue upon the right of Congress under oath stating the manner in which such service was made and be filed among the records of the water department. And the ser-vice of such notice shall, in all cases, be to enact measures for the condemuation of property for public uses, but he maintained that Congress cannot take private property for public use without just compensation.

HIS PROPERTY COULD NOT BE TAKEN. Gen. Birney, continuing, said having proved that this license was clothed with all the forfrequently purchased DUR - malities of a contract, and that for a considera-ANG'S RHEUMATIC tion paid by Bush the privilege was granted to REMEDY for friends him of centinuing his business until suffering with rheumatism and October 31, 1893, his rights became October 31. 1895, in Figure 21. 1895, a vested right of property, not to be taken by Congress, except under the right of eminent domain, before a proper tribunal with an opportunity to him to appear and prove by witness the value of the property taken from him. The following jury was sworn: John M. El-liott, Thomas Crawford, Wm. H. Sleeper, James Holmes, Samuel Wise and James H. Oliver. THE FIRST WITNESS. The first witness called was David Moore, colored man residing at Benning. He said he was standing on the north-bound track between Benning and Deanwood. Saw Morse about 7:30 walking along the track northward between the rails. The engineer blew the whistle three times when about 100 yards from the man. The engine was shifting freight cars and was making in the same direction in which the man was walking northward. tion in which the man was walking-northward. > Alfred Harris, another colored man who saw the accident, said the man was struck in the cars for some distance. After the train was stopped the man was found lying beneath one of the cars, his body parallel with the rails.

THE ENGINEER'S STATEMENT. J. D. Anderson, 509 South Capitol street, the engineer of the train, said that when coming around the curve at the Union stock yards he saw the deceased on the north-bound track, standing sideways. The man then began walking along the track in front of his train. When about 100 yards away from the man witness blew eight or nine short blasts, the danger signal. The man not getting off the track he blew for brakes, reversed his engine, rang the bell and continued blowing the danger signals. Witness applied the air brakes on the engine, there were none on the rest of the train, and in addition to continually ringing the bell and blowing the danger signals, hollered at the man. The train was running at from twelve to fifteen miles an hour. About half of the train had the deceased on the north-bound track, standing miles an hour. About half of the train had passed over the deceased when the train passed over the deceased when the train was finally stopped. The rails were in bad condition. That is, slippery from the moist weather. There were two brakemen, a flagman and conductor on the train. Could not say whether or not the brakes outside the engine were applied before the man was struck. The bell was rung from the time the crossing was reached. secretary Wagner Says That They Are Getting Into Line.

Secretary W. R. Wagner of the Washington Base Ball Club arrived last night from Philadelphia and will devote the rest of the season to the affairs of the club. He says that terms have been agreed on with all the men and that they will be here next week. The first game is scheduled for Wednesday. irke, the new captain-manager, was exhis home in Connecticut to Philadelphia the

I have had a great deal of trouble with my nose and hroat for over two years; my nose was continually unning water as clear as crystal, and it kept me sing hundkerchief after handkerchief; it would bleed every day, sometimes two or three times a day, and from no perceptible cause. My voice, which at first was husky, gradually grew worse, until at last I could hardly speak above a whisper a great deal of the time, and I would have spells of cough-ing so severe that it seemed as if I would burst n blood vesse. I was compelled to lose considerable time from the office on account of my sickness. I had used all the so-called catarrh cures on the market, but without benefit. I went south, but was even worse than before. I have been under Dr. Jordan's treatment about three months and the results are very decided. There is no running or bleeding from my nose now and it feels entirely well. My voice has returned to me and I speak as loud and clear as is necessary. In fact, I am better than I ever expected to be a'ter such a severe siege, and I thought it almost impossible to restore the parts to their natu-
